

The purpose of Human Capital Institute (HCI Africa) is to help companies become Talented Places 2Work4. We firmly believe that companies that work towards becoming Talented Places 2Work4 collectively contribute to South Africa standing out from the crowd in a globally competitive business environment.

Our members share the conviction that talent is the only sustainable competitive advantage in the global knowledge economy, and are moving rapidly to transform their organisations in concert with new services, technology and solution providers.

Since 2006 HCI Africa has been recognised as a consistent provider of innovative, and thought provoking summits and educational offerings in the Human Capital & Talent space. Building on that success we have embarked on an ongoing exercise to increase our range of products and services that empower and enable CEOs, executives, line managers and HR professionals to more easily assume their talent management roles.

HCI Africa is the only professional association specifically focused on the strategic management of Talent. Our members from companies large and small represent the most progressive leaders in the various human capital disciplines as well as a growing number of operating line managers and executives.

What Do We Believe In?

We share the belief that talent is the only sustainable competitive advantage in a global knowledge economy, and that our leaders must move past the fading paradigm of the industrial economy, to embrace 21st century business models and management practices.
